Graduate Programs in Denver

Webster University's master of business administration (M.B.A.) provides a strategic integration of key qualitative and quantitative components necessary for the creation and management of businesses worldwide. The 36-credit-hour program provides a comprehensive foundation in accounting, finance, management, and marketing. It may typically be completed in 15-18 months.

Small Classes

Classroom and online courses are limited to 15-20 people, creating an ideal environment for learning, interaction, and discovery.

Convenient Schedules

Webster offers evening courses in a traditional classroom setting, online options, and five convenient nine-week terms per year. Both formats accommodate your work and family commitments, and you can mix and match online and classroom offerings according to your needs. Traditional classroom courses meet one evening per week, 5:30-9:30 p.m.

Worldwide Locations

Students can transfer seamlessly within Webster's global family of campuses. This means your educational plans don't have to go on hold due to transfer, promotion, or temporary duty assignments. Plus, online M.B.A. courses and other online classes in Webster's World Class Room® give you the opportunity to take classes wherever you go.
